

Elizabeth Bell

BCPVPA Director of Professional
Learning and Development

Elizabeth was a secondary educator and administrator in North Vancouver for 25 years where she routinely relied on an ethical decision-making model for the tough decisions.

The study of ethics stems back to her degree work in Theological Studies and her Master's in counselling and she continues to utilize ethical reflection and discourse when facing daily challenges.

Liz now serves as a Director of Professional Learning and Development with B.C. Principals' & Vice-Principals' Association and enjoys sharing conversations about professional learning and educational leadership with her colleagues across the province.
